iMaXX statement regarding California Proposition 65 (CP65)

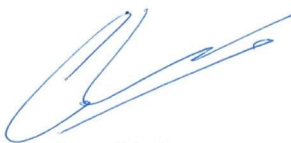

As a European based and oriented company iMaXX does not invest in USA specific regulations. Therefore iMaXX does not accept any form of liability for products marketed in the USA or CAN.

The CP65 proposition covers some 900 chemicals that would require monitoring and labeling of products when brought to market in California. There are several chemicals present in iMaXX products that would require labeling under the CP65 proposition. PVC insulation for automotive wiring for example, requires certain chemicals to properly fulfill its function.

iMaXX does not market directly to the USA, or in this case California, specifically. It is the responsibility of the exporter/importer to ensure products and packaging comply with the rules and regulations applicable in the area the products are marketed.

iMaXX can provide product composition through IMDS on request, which allows customers to check compliance with several regulations, including CP65. It remains up to the company marketing these goods in the USA to ensure all legal obligations are met.
